

UniTrento 'Temporary Protection Project for At-Risk Scholars' – 2022 Call

(Short version. Kindly refer also to the integral form for detailed information)

The University of Trento has just opened a Call for two 12-month (renewable for further 12 months) Research Fellowships for at-risk scholars. The call involves 14 academic structures (Departments/Centres/Schools) of the University and it is opened to different disciplines and research areas (see the integral version of the call for further details).

Eligibility. The following requirements must be met:

- a) a PhD title relevant to the research project awarded by an Italian or foreign university, or an equivalent qualification obtained in a foreign country;
- b) a professional and scientific CV suitable for the research activity described in art. 1;
- c) being a foreign citizen in one of the following situations:
 - 1) Possession of refugee status in Italy or in another European Union State or in a State that signed the Geneva Convention;
 - 2) Recognition of subsidiary protection status in Italy or in another European Union State;
 - 3) Be an asylum seeker in Italy or in another European Union State;
 - 4) Be already recognized as an "at-risk scholar" by SAR (SAR-status) or by other accredited international organizations who work in this field [Scholar Rescue Fund (SRF) and Council for At-Risk Academics (CARA)].

Selection procedure and timeline: the selection will be carried on the basis of title/qualifications, research project (using the Template attached to the application form), motivation letter and interview (held remotely). Interviews will be indicatively conducted between the 9th and the 13th May 2022, and the selected candidates will be contacted between the 23rd and the 25th May 2022. They will have until the 1st June 2022 to accept the position.
