BIBLIOGRAPHY EXAMPLES

1. Here bellow are three GOOD examples.
    i) Example 1: With complete info.
       \bibitem{A1}
       \newblock Author names,
       \newblock Title of the paper,
       \newblock Name of the Journal, Vol. (Year), StaringPage–EndingPage.
    ii) Example 2: No author names
       \bibitem{A3}
       \newblock
       \newblock "Hong Kong in Figures 2006 Edition," \newblock Census and Statistics Department Hong Kong Special Administrative Region.
    iii) Example 3: No title
       \bibitem{A2}
       \newblock F. Abergel and R. Tachet,
       \newblock
       \newblock work in progress.

2. Here bellow are three BAD examples in which authors use their own definitions and do not use \newblock.
    i) Example 1: Use \ref and \endref...
       \ref \key \by [14] T. Šalát \paper A remark on normal numbers \jour Rev. Roumaine Math. Pures Appl., \vol 11 \yr 1966 \pages 53–56 \endref
    ii) Example 2: Use \au, \ti and \jou
       \bibitem{A4}
       \au R. Racke and S. Zheng, \ti The Cahn-Hilliard equation with dynamic boundary conditions, \jou Adv. Diff. Eqns., \no 8 83–110 2003
    iii) Example 3: Use \bysame
       \bibitem{A5}
       \bysame, Ergodic properties of fibered systems, in "Proceedings of the Sixth Conference on Probability Theory" (Braşov, 1979), Ed. Acad. R.S. Romania, Bucharest, 1981, 221–228.