

Andrea Molinari

Profile

Andrea Molinari operates since 1988 as consultant on advanced information systems and process re-engineering, with different collaborations on European projects and consultancy projects for international corporations.

He is a contract professor since 1990 in the area of ICTs at the University of Trento (Italy), since 2003 at the University of Bozen (Italy) and since 2008 at the Åbo Akademi University (Finland).

His professional activities are oriented towards enterprise project management systems, specifically the implementation of project management technologies and techniques inside ICT development teams.

Since 1998 Andrea Molinari has been member of beta tester group for Microsoft Project, Microsoft Project Server and Microsoft Office for the 2007 version of the software suite.

Since 2002 he is working on the evolution and extension of enterprise project management implementations by large organizations and public administrations.

He is member of the Scientific Committee of the School.